Happy Thanksgiving!!

Let's Talk About Books Tuesday, November 2 1:30p.m.

Come hear native Texas Michael McDermott discuss his new book Fort Worth's Fairmount District (Images of America Series). Michael has called the Fairmount Southside Historic District home for more than 25 years and was actively involved in the historic renovation of his 102-year old home. This diverse neighborhood contains one of the nation's richest collections of turn of the century housing and was home to lawyers, business executives, educators, doctors, judges, artists, and small business owners many of whom went on to local and national fame.

Genealogy Databases

The library offers the following databases for finding your family history:

The Ancestry Library edition database contains more than four billion names and 6000 databases for searching directories, lists, and records including census, birth, marriage, death and more.

Heritage Quest Online is available at the library and by remote access through the Texshare databases link. Includes US Census(1790-1930) and more than 25,000 full-text family & local history.

Footnote is available at the library with limited remote access through the library website. Find more than 60 million historical documents available due to partnerships with the National Archives and Library of Congress and other historical & U.S. institutions

November Computer Classes

Computer Classes offered this month are Microsoft Word, Microsoft Excel, and Microsoft Power Point. On Wednesday mornings at 10:30 we are offering individual instructions. Check the calendar for days and times. Call the Reference Desk at 817-685-1489 for information or to reserve a class.

Byki is a fast and effective way to learn a new language on line. Byki online features 80 languages and is free through the Euless Public Library website. For more information, call the Euless Library Reference Desk at 817-685-1489.
